Foraging Walk!

Sunday 20 November 2022 - Around 20 of us, including children and dogs, gathered in anticipation at the Bell Pub in Standon, Hertfordshire, and set out for the walk at around 10.45am. Damien, one of our community members, who frequently goes on foraging walks and uses his found items for tinctures, teas and soups, lead us on a gentle 2 mile walk in the fields around Standon. The weather was beautiful, as you can see in the pictures, despite rain being forecast! It was an educational walk, so we didn't pick anything, just listened, took photos and notes, and learnt a lot.

Afterwards we all had a welcome drink and chat in the pub. We've agreed to hold a more active foraging walk in Spring, where we might combine it with a picnic and cook up some tea or soup with our pickings. Damien then shared some of the books he uses with us in our Telegram group (see pic). Thank you Damien for sharing your expertise and time with us.

Drunemeton Events

We want to arrange regular events where we empower both knowledge and action.

If you have a particular knowledge or skill that you think may be of benefit to others, especially anything to do with self-sufficiency, please get in touch!

Some of our Planned Events...

DRUNEMETON EVENTS

We're hoping to arrange a Winter Self-Sufficiency Fayre soon, probably in January 2023.

We're calling for some volunteers to help arrange it, if this is something you'd like to do. We need a suitable venue, and around 10-20 stall holders, plus other mini-events at the fayre, such as demonstrations or free sessions offered, etc.

If you're a potential stall holder or just keen to help out, please get in touch!

We're also arranging an Afternoon Exploring Alternatives to the Financial System (probably Sat 11 February 2023), with a guest speaker talking about easy Gold and Silver purchases, and Kathryn of Drunemeton talking about Cryptocurrency basics, including CBDCs.

Challenging the Energy Companies

WITH THREATS OF BIG BILLS FOR ELECTRICITY AND GAS, IT'S TIME TO SAY NO, LAWFULLY!

We're not advocating not paying for your energy bills.

Although the Don't Pay movement has gained traction, we think that not paying anything for your energy bills could lead to energy companies taking action such as claiming you're in default and sending debt collectors/bailiffs to your house, which could even lead to asset grabs or evictions in the most extreme cases.

What we've done is send our energy company, British Gas, three legal and lawful Notices.

The first is a Notice of Conditional Acceptance (NOCA), which states that you will agree to pay the increased amount on top of your usual energy bills, if they can provide Bona Fide evidence within 14 days on a number of points which they and mainstream media claim to be the reason for the increased energy costs. The second Notice is an Opportunity to Cure, restating your offer and requests for evidence. If they do not provide the evidence within 14 days (and they won't be able to), you then send the third Notice, a Notice of Default and Estoppel, which basically states that since they didn't provide evidence on the stated points, then they cannot claim that the price rises are valid or lawful, and that you therefore retain your right to pay them only your current (pre-increase) amount for bills and nothing more.

You can view our three Notice process here (you are welcome to use edited versions of our template Notices, if you like): <https://drunemeton-nation.net/notices-for-energy-price-rises/>
